Community Health Workers' Role in Addressing Infant Mortality

Although the Infant Mortality Rate in the United States is falling, it is still worse than its peer nations, according to the Centers for Disease Control. Several U.S. cities are implementing programs to try to address this problem, which is an indicator of the overall health of a community. Because it is so important to target resources and programs to the right populations who need them, community health workers are playing a key role. Community health workers are advocates from within the community who link people to the programs that can help them, and progress in health outcomes and healthy babies is resulting. Read more about the programs here.

Data On Health Disparities and Disabilities

In recognition of the July 26th anniversary of the Americans with Disabilities Act, the CMS Office of Minority Health has released two data highlights that examine the health of people with disabilities.

Currently, there is lack of information that describes people with disabilities who also have ESRD. Due to this gap in literature, it is important to describe and understand this unique and vulnerable population. Medicare Fee-For-Service Beneficiaries with Disabilities, by End Stage Renal Disease Status, 2014 examines Medicare beneficiaries who have a disability, with and without End Stage Renal Disease (ESRD).

Some of the findings include:

- Among the list of other chronic and disabling conditions, Peripheral Vascular Disease (PVD) and Pressure and Chronic Ulcers were significantly higher among Medicare beneficiaries with disabilities and ESRD (26.2% and 17.9%, respectively) compared to beneficiaries with disabilities and without ESRD (9.7% and 5.2%, respectively).
- Among hospitalized beneficiaries, Medicare beneficiaries with disabilities and ESRD had higher rates of 30-day hospital readmissions (33.8%) and were high utilizers (32.8%) compared to beneficiaries with disabilities and without ESRD (17.3% and 19.9%, respectively).

Does Disability Affect Receipt of Preventive Care Services among Older Medicare Beneficiaries? uses data from the 2013 Medicare Current Beneficiary Survey to examine differences in self-reported receipt of preventive care by type of disability for community-dwelling Medicare beneficiaries ages 65 and older.

Some of the findings include:

Among Medicare beneficiaries ages 65 and older, females reporting any type of disability were less likely to receive mammography screening compared to those reporting no disability. Compared to beneficiaries reporting no disability, receipt of pneumococcal vaccination was consistently higher among beneficiaries ages 65 and older reporting any type of disability.

AHRQ and Data from the Opioid Crisis

In the recent AHRQ Views, researcher Anne Elixhauser discusses published statistics about the opioid crisis from newspapers and government databases such as AHRQ's. Shining a Spotlight on the Opioid Crisis Through the Power of Data covers how AHRQ's Healthcare Cost and Utilization Project (HCUP) database has information about hospitalizations and emergency room visits.

AHRQ also recently came out with the following report: Patient Characteristics of Opioid-Related Inpatient Stays and Emergency Department Visits Nationally and by State, 2014. This document breaks the statistics down by sex, states and age groups. It gives a very visual display of the opioid crisis.

Up for World Hepatitis Day on July 28th

Hepatitis affects more than 400 million people worldwide and has led to more than 1.3 million deaths globally in 2015. In the United States, an estimated 4 million people are chronically infected and more than 21,000 people died of hepatitis B and hepatitis C-related causes in 2015. Driven by the opioid epidemic, we are losing ground in the fight against new viral hepatitis infections; progress on hepatitis B prevention has stalled and many states have seen increases; and new hepatitis C infections have increased almost 50% from 2010 to 2015.

On July 28th, World Hepatitis Day, join the World Hepatitis Alliance and other international partners to raise awareness, expand testing, improve care & treatment, and make progress towards global viral hepatitis elimination. This year's theme is Eliminate Hepatitis, and a variety of resources are available to get involved and share information within our networks. Learn more and do more by:

- Downloading World Hepatitis Day campaign materials (available in multiple languages)

- Reading and sharing CDC's Resources for World Hepatitis Day

- Using the National Viral Hepatitis Action Plan to join U.S. efforts to put us on a path toward #NOhep

- Using the hashtags #WorldHepatitisDay, #ShowYourFace, and #NOhep

STER HERE: <http://tinyurl.com/relationships5>

te partner violence (IPV) and women's substance abuse are often intertwined. Some turn to substances to cope with the trauma of IPV, and others are coerced into substances by an abusive partner. High rates of substance abuse among women using domestic violence (DV) services, along with high rates of IPV among women using substance abuse treatment, underscore the need for an integrated approach. However, DV programs are often unprepared to support women around substance abuse, just as behavioral health providers are often unprepared to identify and respond to IPV. This webinar focuses on ways behavioral health and DV service providers work together to address the complex range of issues women face in trying to find support, access recovery services, and heal from the trauma of IPV.

Participate in the Healthy People 2030 Planning Process!

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is soliciting written comments on the proposed framework for Healthy People 2030 developed by the Secretary's Advisory Committee on National Health Promotion and Disease Prevention Objectives for 2030. The Healthy People 2030 framework refers to the Healthy People 2030 vision, mission, overarching goals, foundational principles, and the action plan. Public comment is an essential part of developing Healthy People 2030. Members of the public — both individuals and organizations — are invited to submit comments on the proposed framework. The online public comment period is open through September 29, 2017.

Comments received during this public comment period will be carefully reviewed by HHS. You will be able to comment on individual components of the framework report. Comments should be clear and concise and be specific to the proposed concepts and data. For questions about public comments, please contact HP2030@hhs.gov.

Using Data from the Opioid Crisis

In a recent AHRQ Views, researcher Anne Elixhauser discusses published statistics about the opioid crisis from newspapers and government databases such as AHRQ's Using a Spotlight on the Opioid Crisis Through the Power of Data covers how AHRQ's Healthcare Cost and Utilization Project (HCUP) database has information about alizations and emergency room visits.

It also recently came out with the following report: Patient Characteristics of HIV-Related Inpatient Stays and Emergency Department Visits Nationally and by 2014. This document breaks the statistics down by sex, states and age groups. It a very visual display of the opioid crisis.

Aging Cultural Competency Trainings

Cultural competency training is the foundation for all person-directed care, but it can be difficult to locate high-quality training content. The National Resource Center on LGBT provides information regarding various training programs designed and facilitated for providers in LGBT aging advocacy and cultural competency. Cultural competency training is available at all levels.

Research and Reduce Mental Health Disparities in the African American Community, at August Conference

Cleveland made national headlines in April, when Steve Stephens randomly murdered Robert Godwin and posted video of the act to Facebook. When Stephens took his own life, at the end of a widely publicized two-day manhunt, that was the end of the story for many.

For mental health professionals, however, the story doesn't end there and certainly didn't begin just two days earlier. According to specialists, a long build-up frequently precedes seemingly sudden outbursts of violence. Yet America's mental health system fails minorities, including African Americans like Stephens, more often than the population as a whole.

Health professionals have recognized this disparity for years, and identified various factors at work. Yvonne Hall of Cleveland hopes to facilitate bringing these strands of research together to produce practical solutions.

The Northeast Ohio Black Health Coalition, which Hall leads, is presenting the "State of Mental Health Disparities in the African American Community Conference: The Case for Correcting Cultural Trauma" in August. "We saw the need for a comprehensive approach to the issues impacting the community as a whole," says Hall.

Both trauma and cultural competency are among the factors which experts see disadvantaging the African American community. The University of Connecticut's Center for Mental Health Disparities says that "many ethnoracial minorities experience cumulative experiences of racism as traumatic, with perhaps a minor event acting as 'the last straw' in triggering trauma reactions." Yet many clinicians overlook the cumulative effect of ongoing racial discrimination, they add.

In combination with other cultural blind spots, systemic barriers including cost have held back effective mental health care for minority communities, according to the American Psychological Association.

Hall says that the August conference will be an opportunity not only to catch up on these issues, but to do real work developing better responses. "The conference will examine the state of mental health disparities through historical documentation, systems exploration and personal testimonies," she says.

"This conference is a unique blend of the issues but also includes solutions," too, says Hall. A range of expert panelists will join attendees in breakout sessions, to explore policy responses for every level, from local communities up to state and national programs.

Nationally recognized award-winning author Julius Bailey, Ph.D., will be part of the conference. Its line-up also includes Ohio state Senator Charleta B. Taveres, and the chair of Case Western Reserve University's Bolton School of Nursing, Faye A. Gary, Ed.D, RN, FAAN. A community organizations panel discussion will feature the NAACP and groups from around the country.

The State of Mental Health Disparities in the African American Community Conference begins at noon on Friday, August 18, and continues on August 19 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The conference will take place at Doubletree by Hilton, 3663 Park East Drive in Beachwood. (To book accommodation at a conference rate, guests may call 216-464-5950.)

Conference registration is $100, which includes breakfast, lunch and program materials. Professional CEUs are also available in several fields. NEO Black Health Coalition's vision is to achieve health parity (equality) in the African American/Black population

NEOBHC's mission is to address disparities and inequities in education, employment housing, health and the impact on African American health disparities by working to empower, educate and advocate for under-served populations.

About Yvonka Hall

Yvonka Marie Hall is the Executive Director of the Northeast Ohio Black Health Coalition. She is a nationally recognized health disparities expert and serves as an advisor to numerous organizations.

The 1974 murder of her mother dramatically changed her life; her childhood promise to use her life to help others has lead to the creation of cutting edge programs and impacted thousands of people's lives. After the murders of her mother Yvonne, younger brother Antoine and best friend Tracey, she dedicated her life to working for the disenfranchised.

She served as Director of the Cleveland Office of Minority Health and the Northeast Ohio Director of Cultural Health Initiatives for the American Heart Association. She is a graduate of Texas Southern University and Notre Dame College of Ohio. She has the distinguished honor of being a Robert Wood Johnson Fellow.

- In observance of National Minority Mental Health Awareness Month, we are highlighting Mental Disorders and Disabilities Among Low-Income Children, a publication of the National Academies Press. This report compares national trends for the number of children with mental health and behavior disorders with the trends in the number of children receiving benefits from the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program. This comparison describes possible factors that may contribute to any differences between the two groups. In addition, an overview of the diagnosis and treatment of mental disorders, the influence of racial and socioeconomic factors, and levels of impairment in the U.S. population under age 18 are included for further analysis. ## Health Care Access in Ohio's Hispanic Community

Each year the Latino Affairs Commission compiles reports on topics relating to Ohio's Hispanic community. Our reports are designed to educate and facilitate discussion on particular matters relating to the Latino community.

We are pleased to present you with our most recent Latino Community Report, which investigates the barriers and opportunities related to health care access for Latinos in Ohio. A critique on mental health service accessibility is provided, as well as opportunities to increase impact.

Please click here to view the Latino Community Report. If you would like a hard copy mailed to you, please email us. We hope to see you at the annual Latino Health Summit this Friday!

LPCA Annual Conference - Call for Speaker Abstracts

LOUISIANA PRIMARY CARE ASSOCIATION

OCTOBER 10-13, 2017 | LAKE CHARLES, LA

The Louisiana Primary Care Association is currently accepting speaker abstract proposals for our 2017 Annual Conference!

When: October 10-13, 2017

Where: L'Auberge Casino Resort, Lake Charles, LA

This annual event gathers health center clinicians, administrators, CEOs, board members, and partners from across the healthcare spectrum to discuss issues relevant to community health centers and the patients they serve.

Our theme is "FQHCs: Models of Excellence in Health Care." We will also be celebrating 35 years of serving Louisiana's Community Health Centers! This year's conference will be BIGGER and BETTER than ever!

Presentations should reflect a current health care model that aligns with the following categories:

- Medical, Dental or Behavioral Health
- Quality, Transformation, and Risk Management
- Administrative Policies and Practices
- Outreach and Enrollment
- Human Resources
- Finance and Billing
- Legislative and Policy
- Customer Service
- Marketing and Public Relations

We encourage you to view suggested conference topics.

Please submit proposals in areas/topics for which you are passionate and have demonstrated expertise that align with this year's theme. Proposed topics must be as specific as possible. Each submission should concentrate on a single topic for presentation.

Multiple submissions from the same applicant are allowed. A concurrent session is 60 minutes in length (50-minute lecture and 10-minute question & answer session). Presenters will receive complimentary registration, lodging and meals.

All abstracts must be received by Friday, July 14, 2017 to be considered for inclusion in the 2017 agenda. Speakers will be notified of their acceptance by Friday, July 28, 2017.

Questions may be referred to LPCA Director of Clinical Quality, Shannon Robertson at srobertson@lpca.net or www.lpca.net for more information.

BARRIO LATINO ART FESTIVAL

Dear Friend,

The 6th Barrio Latino Art Festival celebrates diversity, innovation, and creative achievement--is being planned for Aug. 13, 2017 at 1205 Broadway St (corner of Broadway St and Western St), Toledo, OH 43609, from 12 Noon to 9:00 pm. Barrio Latino Arts Festival, will promote tourism, culture heritage, and the arts in a bold and innovative way. Our mission is to support artists, promote artistic expression, create funds for local charitable organizations, and bring visitors and neighbors together to share in the spirit of the arts in our community. Proceeds from this festival go towards supporting two area nonprofit organizations: (1) NUESTRA GENTE Community Projects, Inc., (2) THE PROVIDENCE CENTER. . We recognize the positive effect creative activity has on individuals: providing enjoyment, enlivening spaces, and enriching lives. The festival also makes a practical contribution in terms of sustainability, providing employment, encouraging learning, and inspiring people to adopt active lifestyles. The festival includes live music; folk dancing performances; artisans and crafters with handmade products such as scarves, blankets, cosmetics, and jewelry; a car show; and art kid's activities including a drawing table, face painting, recognition award to an artist, artwork on display, mural painting, crafts, car show, jalapeño contest, and many other special performances and forms of entertainment. Authentic Hispanic food prepared by cooks from the community is one of our biggest attractions. The festival is set in the heart of an urban neighborhood in South Toledo and attracts a very diverse crowd. And, of course, there are offerings for all age groups. The event will be held on the street in open areas with full access for people with disabilities and is easily accessible from public bus routes. We want to increase the attractiveness of the area to tourists, businesses, people and investments through the festival. People (tourists/visitors) spend money on attending the arts and on local businesses. Further, local spending by these arts venues and patronized businesses has indirect multiplier effects.

The Barrio Latino Art Festival brings people and organizations together to celebrate the diversity within the Hispanic heritage and culture. The program will balance community participation with excellence by offering events of both a local and international flavor. Admission is free.

This is a chance to give back to the community and give at-risk youth life-changing opportunities through the arts. Supporting us helps us show our kids another way of life.

We would be grateful if you could support our community Arts Festival. More than 900 volunteers and spectators were in attendance last year, and the event was covered by the local newspapers and television stations. We are anxiously looking forward to even greater success at this year's event and our teens are running much of the programming. If you support us, we will include you in all marketing materials, to our website and plan on recognizing your organization at our event.

Below are the details concerning this year's sponsorship levels:

Elite Sponsorship options:

$1,150 BRONZE: Half page (5 x 3 ¾) ad inside program book, logo on the poster, sponsor name promoted during the festival, La Prensa newspaper and information booth space.

$950 – 2 ½ x 3 ¾ quarter page ad;

$100 - 2 ½ x 1 ¾ business card;

$80 for 2-4 lines in the festival program book.

If your organization would like to participate in this year's event as a sponsor, please contact me or simply make check payable to: Barrio Latino Arts Festival and mail your payment to: P.O. Box 140661, Toledo, Ohio 43614. Deadline for sponsorship/ads is July 28, 2017.

Your contributions to this event are tax deductible as allowed by State and Federal laws.

Thank you very much for your time and consideration.

Eleven State Teams Develop Colorectal Cancer Screening Plans at 80% by 2018 Forum II

CDC hosted the second 80% by 2018 Forum: Increasing Colorectal Cancer Screening Rates Through Enhanced Partnerships between Comprehensive Cancer Control Coalitions and Federally Qualified Health Centers on July 18-19 in Atlanta GA.

Nearly 100 participants, presenters, trainers, facilitators, and subject matter experts attended this 1 ½ day training.

Eleven teams were selected; Idaho, Missouri, Arkansas, District of Columbia, Hawaii, Indiana, New Jersey, North Carolina, Puerto Rico, and Rhode Island.

State teams created action plans focusing on evidence-based strategies such as building and sustaining partner/stakeholders (local roundtables, coalition workgroups), enhancing patient navigation systems, provider feedback and assessment, and a number of communication strategies.

Follow-up technical assistance will be provided to help teams finalize and implement their action plans. The 80% by 2018 Forum III will be held September 6-7 with another group of 11 state teams. The Forums are a collaboration with CDC, National Cancer Institute, American Cancer Society, Health Resources and Services Administration, National Association of Community Health Centers, National Colorectal Cancer Roundtable, and the National Association of Chronic Disease Directors.

Senator John McCain Diagnosed with Brain Cancer

Senator John McCain has been diagnosed with the aggressive brain cancer glioblastoma. Last week, he underwent surgery to remove a blood clot above his left eye. A subsequent pathology report of that tissue found that it was cancerous.

"The Senator and his family are reviewing further treatment options with his Mayo Clinic care team," his office said in a written statement.

Glioblastoma is the most common form of brain cancer, making up 16 percent of all brain malignancies. It is rare, striking some three people out of 100,000 in the U.S. McCain has had multiple cases of melanoma, a skin cancer, that have been removed surgically according to health records he made public during his 2008 presidential bid. However McCain's glioblastoma is a primary tumor, doctors said in the note issued by his office, meaning that it arose independently of those previous bouts of cancer.

USPSTF Stays Course on Ovarian Cancer Screening

Reprinted from MedPage Today, July 18, 2017

Clinicians should not screen for ovarian cancer in women who have no signs or symptoms of the disease, according to a draft recommendation from the United States Preventive Services Task Force.

The Grade D recommendation, available for public comment until Aug. 14, reaffirms a 2012 USPSTF recommendation against ovarian cancer screening for asymptomatic women.

The recommendation does not apply to women who are known carriers of BRCA1/2 mutations, which increase the risk of developing ovarian cancer.

No major medical organization recommends screening the general population of women for ovarian cancer, USPSTF officials said in a statement.

"The task force found that screening women without signs or symptoms for ovarian cancer does not decrease the number of deaths from the disease and may lead to unnecessary surgeries," said task force member Maureen Phipps, MD, of Brown University in Providence, R.I.

"The current screening tests do not do a good job identifying whether a woman does or does not have ovarian cancer," added USPSTF chair David Grossman, MD, of Group Health and the University of Washington in Seattle.

"The Task Force hopes that in the future, better screening tests for ovarian cancer will be developed."

The draft recommendation and the evidence review supporting the recommendation have been posted to the USPSTF website.

Individuals or groups may submit public comments about either document through the website.

Following the public comment period, the USPSTF will review the comments and make revisions, if any are deemed necessary, before releasing a final recommendation, which will be posted to the task force website and published in a major medical journal.

Charter Graduates Get a Leg Up in College

The NAACP and NEA believe charters should be stopped. But Richard Whitmire explained, "the timing of the intertwined anticharter campaigns, however, may prove awkward because of new data." This new data verifies that students from major charter networks are graduating college at three to five times the national average.

Capitol to Capitol

NATIONAL CONFERENCE of STATE LEGISLATURES

July 31, 2017

McConnell on Health Care: "It's Time to Move On"

At 1:39 a.m. on Friday morning, Senator Mitch McConnell (R-Ky.) took to the floor and pronounced the Senate Republican health care bill dead. It was the most dramatic night in the U.S. Senate's recent history, which climaxed with a dramatic thumbs down vote by Arizona Republican John McCain. After the failed vote, McConnell said: "Now I think it's appropriate to ask what are their [Democrats] ideas. It would be interesting to see what they suggest as the way forward."

The legislation, dubbed a "skinny repeal" of the Affordable Care Act (ACA), lacked specifics but was framed by Republican leaders on both sides of the Capitol as the way to begin a negotiation between the House and Senate on a large health care package. Before the vote, Republican leaders knew that they had no margin of error as Senators Susan Collins (R-Maine) and Lisa Murkowski (R-Alaska.) had already announced their intention to vote against the legislation and Republicans could not afford any other defections, given their slim 52-48 majority. McCain, who made a dramatic return to the Senate earlier in the week after it was announced he had been diagnosed with brain cancer, had not yet signaled how he intended to cast his crucial vote. But his Republican colleagues spent much of the time before the vote trying to persuade him to vote with them. Even Vice President Mike Pence, who was in the chamber in case there was a need to cast a tie-breaking vote, walked over to McCain at 12:44 a.m. to persuade him to vote "yes." For the next 21 minutes, the vice president pressed McCain, Collins and Murkowski to change their votes, but ultimately was unsuccessful.

What the failed health care vote means for Washington going forward remains unclear. On CNN's "State of the Union" on Sunday morning, White House budget director Mick Mulvaney told Jake Tapper that "in the White House's view they can't move on in the Senate" to other issues until they pass a health care bill. He said that the Senate "should stay and work and figure out a way to solve this problem." But given that Congress has a packed calendar and fast approaching deadlines, including passing a budget by Sept. 30 to keep the government operating, as well as raising the debt ceiling before the government defaults in October, it is unlikely McConnell will spend any more precious floor time on health care, at least in the short term.

While disappointed, conservatives inside the beltway have signaled that it is time to move on to tax reform. Tim Phillips, president of the conservative Americans for Prosperity, on the failure to repeal and replace the ACA said, "it's time to pivot to tax reform. There's no time to pout."

D.Y.K.? On July 28, Democratic U.S. Rep. John Delaney of Maryland became the first prominent elected official to announce his candidacy for president in 2020. According to Five Thirty Eight, in the past 45 years, there's no record of any serious candidates announcing that they're running for president this early. In the 2016 cycle, Ted Cruz was the first to declare among Democrats and Republicans. He did so on March 23, 2015 — that was 315 days before the Iowa caucuses.

Can Republicans Pivot to Tax Reform?

After their health care bill died on the Senate floor last week, Republican congressional leaders have begun shifting their attention to another equally herculean task: reforming the U.S. tax code. The White House, Treasury and congressional leaders issued a six-paragraph statement last Thursday showing their commitment to pursuing tax reform before the end of 2017. In a symbolic statement, the so-called "Big Six" of top lawmakers and administration officials vowed to reduce tax rates, simplify the tax code, and improve U.S. economic growth by updating tax laws. While the announcement merely presented a broad mission without delving into any policy specifics, one of the most controversial topics in the tax reform debate was officially abandoned. The border adjustment tax, or the tax on imports, was formally stripped from tax reform discussions. This comes following fierce backlash from retailers, and other import-dependent industries and conservative activists who argued that it was a tax on consumers and would hinder economic activity.

The "Big Six", made up of Speaker Paul Ryan (R-Wis.), House Ways and Means Chairman Kevin Brady (R-Texas), McConnell, Senate Finance Chairman Orrin Hatch (R-Utah), Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin, and Gary Cohn, the director of the National Economic Council, will have an extremely busy August as they begin crafting tax reform measures after losing one of the largest ways to fund tax cuts, i.e. repeal of the ACA tax provisions. Brady, who supported border adjustability said last week, "for us to unify it was important to set it aside, for now. We've been actively exploring with the Senate and White House a viable alternative," he added. "[We] still have work to do but I like the path we're going."

That path will prove difficult. Republicans plan to use the congressional tool known as budget reconciliation to push tax reform through the Senate without Democratic votes. But any provisions in a reconciliation package that would add to the deficit outside the 10-year budget window must be temporary. Most likely to end up as permanent would be cuts to business and individual rates while the elimination of various individual tax breaks, including the federal deduction for payment of state and local taxes are at stake. NCSL has joined with the other Big 7 state and local groups actively and adamantly opposing this approach. Specifics for tax reform will be planned during the August recess and Republican leadership will begin whipping members into line on passing a budget to serve as a vehicle for tax reform. It remains to be seen if Ryan, McConnell and President Donald Trump will be able to sell the tax-reform plan to the public. Public support will be vital if comprehensive tax reform is to ever be realized.

Congress Will Have a Busy Fall

While the Senate will remain in session for the next two weeks to work on issues that have been sidelined during the health care debate, the House has adjourned for a five-week recess and won't return to Washington until September. And September is shaping up to be a critical month in Washington for Congress and the Republican agenda. Even if health care legislation remains sidelined, Republican leaders will need to secure the votes to keep the government funded and to raise the debt ceiling, which will likely expose the ideological divisions within the GOP again. If Republicans have trouble sending "must-pass" legislation to the president's desk, it will portend an even tougher path for other major initiatives for this Congress, including comprehensive tax reform.

Here are a few of the big-ticket items that Congress must address this fall:

- Pass an Appropriations Bill: FY 2018 begins on Oct. 1. Rumors on the Hill indicate that as of now, Congress will likely extend funding until December, and then fight over the rest of the year's funding in the final month of the year. Failure to pass a spending measure in time, which would result in a government shutdown, would be devastating for Republicans and their agenda in Washington.
- Raise the Debt Ceiling: Congress has not made any headway on a plan to lift the nation's debt limit because of infighting in the administration and on Capitol Hill on whether or not the raise should come with strings attached. Lawmakers have until October to get this done and, if history repeats itself, don't expect a deal until the last minute.
- Reauthorize the Federal Aviation Administration: Although bills are under consideration in both chambers, the House and the Senate will need to resolve differences, including whether to privatize the nation's air traffic control system.

- The Children's Health Insurance Program, which provides health care coverage to more than 8 million kids, is authorized through 2019, but the funding expires at the end of the current fiscal year, on Sept. 30.
- Reauthorize the National Flood Insurance Program: The program is set to expire at the end of September. The program has come under scrutiny following its handling of claims from Superstorm Sandy in 2012 and fiscal hawks are concerned about the program's ballooning $24 billion debt. Numerous members have called for reforms, including proposals for privatization.

D.Y.K.? The longest terms of office in the U.S. government, aside from judges, are the comptroller general and the assistant comptroller general. They hold office for 15. The current comptroller general is Eugene Louis Dodaro, who assumed his post Dec. 22, 2010.

House Committee Approves Autonomous Vehicle Legislation; Senate Committee Expected to Follow Suit Shortly

On July 27, the House Energy and Commerce Committee approved H.R. 3388, Safely Ensuring Lives Future Deployment and Research In Vehicle Evolution Act (SELF DRIVE Act). The bill aims to update federal regulations, requirements and preemption language related to autonomous vehicles and vehicle technology. Most important, the bill includes language that would expand federal preemption of states from motor vehicle safety to include automated driving systems, or components of automated driving systems.

While still an expansion of current preemption, the final language approved by the committee was changed from earlier versions after a letter from a number of major state associations, including NCSL, the National Governors Association, and others that called on the committee to ensure that states continue to serve in their traditional role as regulators of vehicle operations. Additionally, the letter, spearheaded by NCSL, was successful in revising language regarding exemptions of federal motor vehicle safety standards (FMVSS), and vehicle safety assurance requirements from earlier versions of the bill.

There is a similar ongoing effort on autonomous vehicles in the Senate. On June 13, Senate Commerce, Science and Transportation Committee Chairman John Thune R-S.D.), Ranking Member

Bill Nelson (D-Fla.) and Senator Gary Peters (D-Mich.) introduced a set of principles on self-driving vehicle legislation. The six principles outlined include:

- Prioritizing motor vehicle safety to ensure that federal standards are eventually set.
- Promoting innovation and reducing roadblocks by ensuring that existing rules are updated to account for this new technology.
- Remaining tech-neutral to avoid favoring one business model over another.
- Reinforcing separate federal and state roles to ensure the federal government sets vehicle safety standards while states regulate the driver, and while also making targeted updates for this new technology.
- Strengthening cybersecurity to ensure the vehicles are safe to operate.
- Educating the public around the differences between conventional and self-driving vehicles.

It remains unclear when the Commerce Committee will release a formal bill although a markup is not anticipated until September, at the earliest.

NCSL's States' Agenda to be Adopted at Boston Legislative Summit

Next week, the NCSL Standing Committees will meet to consider almost 50 policy directives and resolutions during NCSL's Legislative Summit in Boston. If approved by at least three-fourths of the states in the committees, the policy directives and resolutions will then be considered at the annual Business Meeting. To be part of NCSL's States Agenda, policy directives and resolutions will again need to be adopted by at least three-fourth of the states. These policy directives and resolutions will guide NCSL's advocacy efforts before Congress and the administration.

Below is a link to the policy directives and resolutions the NCSL Standing Committees expect to consider during their meetings on Sunday, Aug. 6, and Monday, Aug. 7. Final votes on all policy directives and resolutions reported from the standing committees will take place at the annual NCSL Business Meeting, scheduled for Monday, Aug. 7, from 3:15--5 p.m.

NCSL President-elect Senator Deb Peters Testified Before Congress

NCSL President-elect Senator Deb Peters (R) of South Dakota testified before the House Judiciary Committee's Subcommittee on Regulatory Reform, Commercial and Antitrust Law last Tuesday in opposition to the No Regulation Without Representation Act, H.R. 2887. Peters explained in her testimony that the legislation would preempt countless laws in every state and would cede even more control to the federal government. "Congress has persistently endeavored to erode state sovereignty and undermine the significance of the 10th Amendment in favor of more centralized power at the national level," Peters said. "This erosion of state sovereignty has only accelerated in recent years as the congressional thirst to dictate state governance apparently cannot be quenched."

In her written testimony, Peters cited some of the hundreds, or even thousands, of state laws that would be preempted by the No Regulations Without Representation Act, including state laws that prohibit the possession of Salvia, laws that would address the opioid crisis, and laws that protect against invasive species. She also said the legislation being discussed in the hearing would have shut down efforts by states to collect sales taxes on remote transactions and would preempt numerous other tax laws, such as corporate income taxes, in 25 states.

In general, the members of the subcommittee were sympathetic to the concerns raised by Peters, and most offered little or no support for the No Regulation Without Representation Act. Representative Doug Collins (R-Ga.), in his comments, stated that because of the broad and preemptive nature of the bill, "I cannot support the approach we are taking in the subcommittee here today in considering this legislation."

A weekly report on education news & commentary from the nation's leading voice on education innovation and opportunity

FIRESTORM. AFRICAN AMERICAN LEADERS SPEAK OUT AGAINST NAACP'S EDUCATION QUALITY HEARING REPORT.

The NAACP's recent report on education quality, which challenges the value of charter schools for minority families has African American ed reform leaders in an uproar. Two of the most prominent to speak out: CER directors David Hardy, founder and Chair of Boys' Latin Philadelphia Charter School, and Donald Hense, founder and chairman of Washington D.C.'s Friendship Public Charter Schools. In a statement released through CER, these long-time advocates for options for disadvantaged youth describe the NAACP's campaign against charter schools as an obstacle to opportunity that only serves to stifle a movement, that for thousands of children, is the greatest – and only - hope for achieving a quality education. Read their full statement here:

<https://www.edreform.com/2017/07/african-american-education-leaders-speak-out-against-naacp-actions/>

WHAT A GREAT QUESTION! Would Martin Luther King Have Supported Charter Schools? That's the question pondered by the man who served as the civil rights legend's chief of staff in the 1960's, Dr. Wyatt Tee Walker. According to Dr. Walker, the question is easily answered with a resounding "yes!" Check out "A Light Shines in Harlem", an award winning, must-read about Dr. Walker's founding of The Sisulu-Walker School, New York City's first charter school.

AFT OFF BASE AND OUT OF TOUCH. In another firestorm that won't go out, CER's Jeanne Allen renewed the call for AFT president Randi Weingarten to step down. As you'll recall, the union boss smeared choice advocates, ed reform pioneers, and basically all parents who embrace options for their children by likening them to racists and segregationists. Weingarten hasn't backed away from her statement and is standing behind the "truth" of her assertion, prompting this from Allen: "Randi Weingarten's smug obstinacy in refusing to accept responsibility for her slur against reformers is disturbing. Clearly, she believes staying on message—no matter how insulting that message is to African-Americans and people of color throughout the nation—is more important than honesty, fairness, respect and simple decency."

A RISING TIDE LIFTS BOTH BOATS. Charter school opponents like to claim that the presence of a charter school in a community results in less funding being directed to neighboring traditional public schools (TPS). But a new study of NYC public schools now says otherwise. The Temple University study reveals that having a charter school in the neighborhood spurs competition and consequently generates more per-pupil funding for the traditional public school with an increase of 9% when the charter and TPS are in the same building and 2% when they are physically further apart. So there goes that argument.

SPACE, THE FINAL FRONTIER. NASA is making efforts to encourage more girls and women to study STEM and prepare for careers in aerospace and other sciences. To give credit where credit is due, NASA's move is in response to President Trump's Inspire Women Act, which he signed into law back in February. NASA is also creating other programs to advance STEM studies, including NASA GIRLS & BOYS, a program that provides middle school students with a virtual mentorship with NASA employees.

WELL THAT'S INTERESTING: suburban kids pay tuition to attend DC public schools. While choice opponents like to argue that educational choice is all about taking money away from public schools so that students can attend private or parochial schools, public schools like the DC based Duke Ellington School of the Arts are turning that supposed paradigm on its head. 45 suburban families are currently plunking out $11,000 a year in tuition to send their children to the Northwest DC school. And if it were not for a 10% cap on out-of-district students, that enrollment statistic would be even higher.

Beyond the First 100 Days: Transforming government's role in education is both a review of progress to date, a reiteration of its January, 2017 recommendations to the Trump Administration, and an extension on the work that must be performed. Read here if you haven't already.

Energy Department Announces Eleven Projects to Boost Private-Sector Support of Energy Innovation

USDOE

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Today, the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) announced $7.8 million in support of eleven projects to unlock private-sector resources for energy innovation. The projects, part of DOE's Innovative Pathways program, are designed to address the systemic barriers currently preventing the private sector from more fully supporting energy innovation and bringing new energy technologies to market. The projects will develop and test new ways to integrate emerging technologies into the energy industry and new models to unlock private capital in support of American energy innovation.

Court rejects 2015 EPA biofuels waivers

The Hill

A federal court on Friday rejected an Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) decision to waive certain ethanol blending requirements that regulators said were appropriate due to the state of fuel markets. The Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ruled that the EPA erred in 2015 when it waived certain biofuel blending requirements set in the Renewable Fuel Standard (RFS) law seven years prior. The EPA decision in 2015 required oil refiners blend 18.11 billion gallons of biofuels into their gasoline and diesel supply the following year. That level was below the goal set by Congress, but the EPA said it was waiving the requirement because demand pressures were limiting the ability to increase renewable fuel levels as quickly as the law required.

Climate Action UN

On Friday 28 July, the global banking giant JPMorgan Chase announced that by 2015, all its property assets will be fuelled exclusively with renewable energy and that by then it will facilitate $200 billion in clean financing. The company owns property that totals approximately 79 million square meters, across 60 countries all over the world. The global banking giant's plans include the on-site renewable energy installations, the procurement of clean energy through Power Purchase Agreements with renewable energy projects, and energy efficiency projects to reduce the demand side.

Passenger Ship

Peace Boat is planning to build five new ships that go a step further than prototype Ecoship by using more battery power and deploying fuel cell technology, director and founder Yoshioka Tatsuya told Passenger Ship Technology in an exclusive interview. And the target is to build five ships in five years "depending on the market situation", Mr Tatsuya said. He unveiled details about the future newbuildings "The new ship will be similar to our Ecoship prototype, but we are expecting developments of batteries and fuel cell technology."

3D Printing Industry

The Cell3Ditor project is developing a hybrid inkjet/SLA ceramic 3D printer for the mass production of low emission Solid Oxide Fuel Cells (SOFCs). As an alternative to carbon-based energy generation, the project has been backed by the European Commission within the Fuel Cells and Hydrogen Joint Undertaking (FCH JU). Over the next three and half years the commission will support Cell3Ditor on its mission to develop the materials, machinery, and processes necessary to create and up-scale a circular system for alternative energy production.

Hartford Business

Danbury's FuelCell Energy said it has won a contract to build 11 of its fuel cell plants on Long Island. Long Island Power Authority has agreed to purchase the electricity from units, which have a combined capacity of 39.8 megawatts, for the next 20 years. The fuel cells would be located in three different areas. Financial terms of the deal were not disclosed. CEO Arthur "Chip" Bottone said the projects will enhance power generation and resiliency needs.

Nano aluminium offers fuel cells on demand - just add water

New Scientist

The accidental discovery of a novel aluminium alloy that reacts with water in a highly unusual way may be the first step to reviving the struggling hydrogen economy. It could offer a convenient and portable source of hydrogen for fuel cells and other applications, potentially transforming the energy market and providing an alternative to batteries and liquid fuels. "The important aspect of the approach is that it lets you make very compact systems," says Anthony Kucernak, who studies fuel cells at Imperial College London and wasn't involved with the research.

HPIO online seminar to explore latest developments in federal health reform

Although the Senate failed to repeal or replace the ACA last week, the future of federal health policy remains unclear. So what comes next in terms of health reform.

Given the uncertainty surrounding federal health policy, HPIO is hosting a series of online seminars where state and national experts will provide analysis of the latest developments in Washington and explain what they could mean for Ohio.

The second of these three online seminars is scheduled for 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. on Thursday Aug. 24, featuring Robert Laszewski, President, Health Policy and Strategy Associates, Inc. and author of the Health Care Policy and Marketplace Review. Laszewski is an influential national expert on the healthcare market. His writing has appeared in Forbes, Kaiser Health News and other national publications. In addition, his consulting clients include health insurance companies, casualty insurance companies, HMOs, Blue Cross organizations, hospitals, pharmaceutical companies and physician groups.

Governors urge Trump to keep ACA cost-sharing subsidies

Democratic and Republican governors on Wednesday urged the Trump administration, as well as Congress, to continue funding payments to health insurance companies that make Obamacare plans affordable, calling it critical to stabilizing the insurance marketplace (Source: "U.S. governors urge Trump to make insurance payments," Reuters, Aug. 2, 2017)

Republican President Donald Trump, frustrated that Obamacare survived attempts to repeal it, has threatened to cut off about $8 billion in subsidies that help control costs for low-income Americans under the Affordable Care Act.

"The Administration has the opportunity to stabilize the health insurance market across our nation and ensure that our residents can continue to access affordable health care coverage," said a statement by the Health and Human Services Committee of the National Governors Association.

Some Congressional Republicans have joined Democrats in urging Trump to continue the payments. Republican Senator Lamar Alexander, chairman of the health committee, said Tuesday the president should pay the subsidies through September while lawmakers work on bipartisan legislation to fund the outlays for another year.

But the Senate's No. 2 Republican John Cornyn hesitated when asked Wednesday if he would support such legislation. "I've said before that I'm not in favor of throwing money at insurance companies without reform, so that's going to be the nature of the conversation," Cornyn told reporters outside his office.

ODI: 19 Ohio counties regain ACA marketplace plans

Officials with the Ohio Department of Insurance announced this week that they have worked with five health care insurers to cover 19 Ohio counties that otherwise wouldn't have had a health insurance option on the federal health care exchange next year (Source: "Health care in Ohio: 19 counties to again have insurance option," Associated Press via the Lorain Morning Journal, July 31, 2017).

ODI joined Buckeye Health Plan, CareSource, Medical Mutual of Ohio, Molina Health Care of Ohio and Paramount Health Care in the announcement Monday.

Two major insurers had announced earlier this year that they would leave the exchange in 2018, leaving Ohioans in 20 counties without an option on the exchange. The department's statement says it's working to restore coverage in the 20th county, Paulding, before late September.

The 19 counties are: Coshocton, Crawford, Guernsey, Hancock, Harrison, Hocking, Holmes, Jackson, Knox, Lawrence, Logan, Morgan, Muskingum, Noble, Perry, Van Wert, Vinton, Williams and Wyandot.

Ohio gets low score for cancer policies

Ohio has failed a recent evaluation by the American Cancer Society's Cancer Action Network, meeting just three of the network's nine public policy goals aimed at reducing cancer diagnoses and deaths (Source: "Ohio fails on cancer-control policies, study finds," Columbus Dispatch, Aug. 3, 2017)

The state was highly criticized in three areas: for not prohibiting minors from using tanning beds; for allocating just 10.3 percent of the federal government's recommended funding level for tobacco-control programs; and for appropriating less than one-third of matching funds to a federal award for breast and cervical cancer screening programs.

The report, released Thursday, focuses on tobacco cessation, access to care and quality-of-life issues, said Jeff Stephens, the network's government relations director.

"Ohio is just sort of average," Stephens said. "We've missed some big opportunities in the last handful of years, particularly in the past two biennial budgets, with really attacking the issues around tobacco control."

On the plus side, Ohio was singled out for being one of just four states that protect the most residents from secondhand smoke and one of just nine states that provide the most comprehensive tobacco cessation coverage through Medicaid. Ohio also was mentioned for being among the states that expanded Medicaid coverage to include families earning up to 138 percent of the federal poverty level ($12,060 a year for the first person in a family, and $4,180 for each additional person).

2017 Infant Mortality Conference

"See attachments SAVE THE DATE, 2017"

Brief Conference Summary

Theme: EveryOne Should Turn One Infant Mortality Conference

Conference Goals: To inform the community about infant mortality; and build up and strengthen collective action to enact policies and take action to address factors that contribute to infant mortality at the systems, community/environment, and grassroots levels

Location: Dayton Convention Center

Dates: September 22-23, 2017

Executive Summary

September Infant Mortality Conference

The Dayton & Montgomery County Infant Mortality Task Force Team is engaged in a community awareness campaign to increase awareness - at the policy/systems, community/environment, and grassroots/affected population level - of all aspects of infant mortality, including contributing factors, the disparity gap, prevention strategies, and ways to work collaboratively to improve the health outcome.

In September, a conference is being planned by a collaborative team of many partners from diverse sectors. The conference will be supported by the Dayton & Montgomery County Infant Mortality Task Force Team, OEI/MCH team, PHDMC staff, the planning team and other partners, and community volunteers.

The goal of the conference is to inform the community about infant mortality, and build up and strengthen collective action to enact policies, and take action to address infant mortality at the systems, community/environment, and grassroots levels, to address contributing factors.

Thursday evening will be invitation only with partners at the systems-level, including city, county, state and federal government, health, social services, academic, civic, and other leaders. The lead is Terra Williams.

Friday will be designed for stakeholders, i.e., clinical providers, academicians, and other professionals, with CEs/contact hours offered to nurses. The co-leads are Maleka Embry and Cheryl Scroggins.

Saturday will be designed for the grassroots community and providers serving particularly target populations. The co-leads are Maleka Embry and Cheryl Scroggins.

U.S. Senate votes down ACA repeal plan

The U.S. Senate in the early hours of Friday morning rejected a new, scaled-down Republican plan to repeal parts of the Affordable Care Act, derailing the Republicans' seven-year campaign to dismantle President Barack Obama's signature health care law (Source: "Senate Rejects Slimmed-Down Obamacare Repeal as McCain Votes No," New York Times, July 27, 2017).

Republican senators Susan Collins of Maine, Lisa Murkowski of Alaska and John McCain of Arizona joined all 48 Democratic senators in opposing the bill.

The "skinny repeal" bill, as it became known at the Capitol this week, would have increased the number of people who are uninsured by 15 million next year compared with current law, according to the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office. Premiums for people buying insurance on their own would have increased roughly 20 percent, the budget office said.

The new, eight-page Senate bill, called the Health Care Freedom Act, was unveiled just hours before the vote. It would have ended the requirement that most people have health coverage, known as the individual mandate. But it would not have put in place other incentives for people to obtain coverage — a situation that insurers say would leave them with a pool of sicker, costlier customers. It would also have ended the requirement that large employers offer coverage to their workers.

With so many senators in both parties railing against the fast-track procedures that Republican leaders used, a return to health care seemed certain to go through the committees, where bipartisanship and deliberation are more likely.

Feds unveil plans for uncompensated-care fund cuts

Starting this October, the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services could begin cutting billions in federal funds meant to help hospitals with uncompensated-care costs (Source: "Billions in federal uncompensated-care funds to be cut starting in October," Modern Healthcare, July 27, 2017).

The Affordable Care Act mandated that Medicaid disproportionate-share hospital funds be cut by $43 billion between fiscal 2018 and 2025. During negotiations over the ACA, hospital lobby groups acquiesced to the cuts under the assumption that expanded coverage from the healthcare reform law would reduce the need for the funding.

Congress delayed the cuts, which were supposed to start in 2014, after hospitals complained that increased patient traffic wasn't outpacing uncompensated-care costs. The most recent extension expires Sept. 30.

The agency announced its plans in a proposed rulemaking Thursday. The cuts build year over year, starting at $2 billion in fiscal 2018, before making its way to $8 billion by fiscal 2025.

Ohio healthcare transparency law in legal limbo

Two years after it passed unanimously in Ohio's state Legislature, a law meant to inform patients what health care procedures will cost has yet to be implemented (Source: "Health-care price transparency faces opposition in Ohio from hospitals and doctors," Kaiser Health News via Cincinnati-Enquirer, July 23, 2017).

One of the most stringent in a group of similar state laws being proposed across the country, Ohio's Healthcare Price Transparency Law stipulated that providers had to give patients a "good faith" estimate of what non-emergency services would cost individuals after insurance before they commenced treatment.

But the law didn't go into force on Jan. 1 as scheduled. The Ohio Hospital Association, one of the most vocal critics of the law, has filed a court injunction that is currently delaying enactment.

Joining the hospital association in its legal action are a wide range of provider groups including Ohio State Medical Association, the Ohio Psychological Association, the Ohio Physical Therapy Association, and the Ohio chapters of the American Academy of Pediatrics, the American College of Surgeons, and the American Osteopathic Association. These groups say that the law, which applies only to elective procedures, is too broad and that forcing providers to create
